

FAST FACTS about the Nisqually Subarea Plan Asphalt Recycling Policy E.5

- ◆ No decisions regarding individual site permit applications will be made under this project.
- ◆ Anyone can submit an application to amend a County policy during the County's Comprehensive Plan amendment docketing process, which occurs annually (there is an application fee that may vary annually).
- ◆ "Accessory use" means not the main activity happening on a site, but rather a smaller yet still related activity, in this policy context.
- ◆ The current Policy E.5 language was adopted in 1992 and cites water quality concerns as the basis for the existing prohibition.
- ◆ The Nisqually Subarea is home to two of the oldest gravel mines in Washington State.
- ◆ There is currently one asphalt plant in the Nisqually Subarea. It is located within the Holroyd mine site. This plant has been operated by Lakeside Industries, INC. for more than ten years.